Hi. I have a resume on PDF format. All I want to do is delete one line of text. How do I do that?

As @hg.wells has said - that is what I would do.

Alternatively use a PDF create/edit app (and I don't mean one that does annotation). That is expensive.

You can use the markup tool in Preview to draw a white box over the text you'd like to get rid of. I do it all the time!

Good approach, my only concern is recruiters use tools that scan text in PDFs. So whilst visually it may not be visible. A tool could still pull the text out of the pdf.

The text is still there in the document - obscured, not deleted.

I'm not sure that's what the text scanners are capable of but even if they were, just markup and print to PDF instead of saving. You can make anything a PDF from the print menu and it flattens the output file.
